MAROOINED TRAPPERS.

RELIEF SHIP'S SECRET VOYAGE.

ELUDING THE RUSSIANS.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)

LONDON, August 20.
Stefansson, the famous explorer, announces that the schooner "Donaldson" sailed from Nome, Alaska, on August 2 to rescue the four Britishers marooned on Wrangel Island since September, 1921.

A 1914 CLAIM.

The "Donaldson's" departure was kept secret in order to prevent interception by the Soviet authorities who were recently reported to have ordered the capture of any British ship trying to reach the island which the Soviet claims to be Russian.

The Britishers were landed in 1921 to preserve British rights again asserted by the Canadian Government in 1914.

[Wrangel Island, situated south-east of Alaska, is named after a famous Russian explorer of the polar regions. There is a settlement which is the port for fur-traders and the mining centre. The population (including native Indians) is about 900. An earlier cable stated that the Soviet authorities at East Cape had advised Mr. Noice, the head of the expedition to relieve the Crawford party marooned on Wrangel Island, that unless his ship the "Donaldson" called at Petropavlovsk for clearance papers and at East Cape for a contingent of Red guards to be taken to the island the "Donaldson" would be confiscated. Although Crawford raised the British flag when he landed on the island, it was understood the Soviet claims the island wanted a Red guard to accompany Noice in order to enforce payment of taxes on furs taken by the Crawford party.]

BERLIN AGHAST.

LIVING COSTS SOARING.

FABULOUS FIGURES.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)

BERLIN, August 20.
Berliners are aghast at the prospect of coal being $5,000,000 marks a ton in consequence of the Council's warning of a forthcoming 200 per cent increase in the price. This comes atop a 2,000 per cent. increase in the transport rates just effected, already making coal prices 2,000,000 times above the pre-war rate.

Electrical light, gas and railway rates are becoming prohibitive. Prices of clothing, boots, and food are advancing enormously. They already exceed world parity.

With the object of saving the Leipzig Autumn fair from becoming a washout, the fair authorities have been empowered to issue an emergency currency.

SCRAPPING THE "AUSTRALIA."

MELBOURNE, August 20.

Mr. Bowden Minister of Defence, announces that steps are being taken to dismantle the battle cruiser "Australia."

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Cable Communication with Macao is interrupted.

The Dinner Dansant originally announced to take place at the Repulse Bay Hotel on Saturday next has been postponed.

The Overland China Mail, weekly issue of the China Mail, will contain the full story of the typhoon. Orders should be booked now as a heavy demand is certain.

According to a Reuter cable, advices from Seoul state that a storm in Korea resulted in 346 persons being killed. Over a thousand are missing, and extensive damage has been done to houses and other property.

The "Fook On" native passenger boat, which used to ply between Canton and Hoiping met with an accident while passing Yingkokui near Shuntak, and sank. Most of the passengers were drowned.

Three men have been detained by the police in connection with the Chinese who was stabbed to death in Queen's Road Central on Thursday night. The deceased has been identified by his brother-in-law as a former member of the Chinese Medicine Workers' Guild which he left some time ago to form a rival union.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Vice-Governor, Gilmore and Sir Jehangir H. Kothari, K.T., O.B.E. were passengers on the s.s. "Tango Maru" which arrived on Saturday.

The news of Mr. Weatherbe's escape has been confirmed, states a Reuter cable from Peking. He arrived at Pichuan on August 13 and left there for Tali on the 15th.

General Sir H.M. Evans is dead. He was born in 1841. He served in the Duff Expedition, 1874-75; in the Naga Expedition 1893-95, and in the Manipure operation 1891.

While his condition is not considered dangerous Japan's Premier is stated to be very ill and his resignation is believed to be imminent, states a Reuter cable from Peking.

Only a few relatives and friends attended the wedding of Miss Fredericka Katherine Mead, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead, of Shanghai, which took place on August 9, at five o'clock at the bride's home, Sunnyside, Plainfield, New Jersey. Miss Margaret Platt Mead, the maid of honour, was the bride's only attendant. Mr. Frederick R. Sites, formerly of Shanghai, acted as best man. Dr. and Mrs. Hiltner will sail immediately for Shanghai.

THE SINKING OF THE LOONGSANG.

I.

The signals are flying from lessons of previous years; With clearing of wharves and in driving small craft from the piers, It's helter and skelter to shelter in caves and in bays; 'Tis a rising surprisingly rapid predicted for days.

The Typhoon's sad moaning and growling from far out at sea; The Harbour's wild lashing and thrashing of breakers set free; Upending the ruin and refraining the roar and the call; On devastating, gyrating above the sea wall.

From Cruisers to Chasers flash signals—replying in form, And Gunboats of nations to wallow, defying the storm. Through misty wild foaming of billows loom funnel and mast, Of greyhounds from oceans and oceans to buoys made fast.

Oh, wilder and wilder blow raging insatiable winds, With sirens are screeching "We're drifting"—to torment our minds! We crowded the shore-front forgetting the danger from trees, Uprooting and creaking and bending belashed by the seas:

Which breaking in mountains of anger—o'er quay and away—To be dissipated in galling like bullets of spray. Then vessels, great vessels, came crashing and smashing ashore; In horror and helplessness we stood there with hearts that were sore.

II.

The Tempest to show its disdain for our worship of might, Sent submarine rolling and gurgling to sink from our sight; The last man left struggling with furious tide wind and wave, Till rescued by life-line brought out by the bravest of brave.

The "Senko Maru" held over a pier by the tide, And "Ginyo" a liner abeam, washed ashore alongside; Down came the "Loong Sang" bows under, awash, sinking fast, Showed high her propeller, crew clinging to rigging and mast:

Some bravely to reach them threw life-belts and lines from the piers, Their efforts were frail in such fury tho' helped by our cheers. We then saw the Captain and Staff with the crew eight or more—The vessel heeled over and floundered a few yards from shore.

With wolf-like wild champing and chopping of waves o'er their prey, The vision was taken from tear dimmed tired eyes by the spray, In sorrow the morrow, for widows and orphans they grieved, For gallant and hardy brave sailor-men's fates they bereaved.

A WINNER.

PROGRAMME WORTH FIVE DOLLARS.

The holder of the following theatre programme is requested to forward it to the China Mail office when a coupon to the value of $5 will be issued which may be changed for goods to the same value with any of the advertisers in the China Mail.

Sir Theatre Programme No. 431 issued Sunday, August 19 to Monday, August 20. Patrons of the three Cinema Theatres, the Coronet, Star and World are advised to retain their programmes and study the number to be found on the front page.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Mr. W. Russell Brown, H.B.M. Acting Consul-General at Tientsin, has received notice of his promotion to the rank of full Consul as from December to last. On the return of Mr. Ker from home leave, Mr. Brown will be appointed to his higher post at some other port. Mr. Brown has been in the Consular Service for nearly 23 years.

The death is reported from India of an old friend of Hongkong, in the person of Colonel Charles William Robert St. John, late R.E., born in India in 1858. In his youth he was an instructor at Chatham, and served in many parts of the Empire, including Gibraltar, Ireland, South Africa and China. At Hongkong, he commanded the Engineers for a number of years. Col. St. John was a very keen churchman in this Colony and since his retirement he devoted his energies to Church work, and besides other positions was on the committee of the China Inland Missions. He went out to India to visit his son, now serving in the Artillery on the N.W. Frontier.

The death occurred on July 2, in England of Colonel Arthur Williamson Alsager Pollock, a gentleman well-known to many people in Shanghai, especially those of the Municipal Police Force. His connection with Shanghai consisted in the fact that since 1911, in conjunction with Mr. Charles Mayne, formerly Municipal Engineer, he had assisted in the selection of recruits engaged in England for service with the Police. In such capacity he did splendid work, and the community has to thank him for the choice of so many able officers now in the service. From the time mentioned he had personally interviewed practically every recruit, and accordingly his name is well-known in local circles.

The Typhoon's sad moaning and growling from far out at sea; The Harbour's wild lashing and thrashing of breakers set free; Upending the ruin and refraining the roar and the call—To honour and cherish those perished, the bravest of all.

EDUCATION "MEDDLING."*SAUCEPANS BEFORE TEACHING.

The Board of Education was criticised at the annual meeting in London of the Association of Education Committees for its "meddlesomeness" in other connections.

Dr. Brackenbury, of Hornsey, gave an instance of a local authority that wanted to furnish a cookery room at a cost of £31. The Board, he said, sent the estimate back for more complete details in order that it might criticise the price of saucepans. (Laughter.)

The resolution moved by Dr. Brackenbury.

That the Board should devote their energies more to the cause of educational progress and less to continuous and meticulous interference with the judgment and discretion of the local authorities in matters of administrative detail, was carried unanimously and drew only one criticism. That was from Mr. Arthur Lewis, of West Bromwich, who suggested "Nosey Parker meddlesomeness" in place of the words "meticulous interference."

There was, said Dr. Brackenbury, a very grave danger of local government becoming unreal. If that happened it would be a disaster to the nation. (Applause.)

A motion in the name of Boots called for a revision of the Burdham scale in respect of salaries paid to young women teachers.

As an amendment the executive committee moved that it would be "a breach of honour" to attempt to alter the scale before it was due to expire in 1925.

Councillor Adams, of Lowestoft, disagreed with the scale on the ground that it was productive of late marriages and tended to lift the bachelor girl to a position in the country she should not hold.

The Burdham Committee had no idea what giving a girl £3 a week at the age of 21 meant. (Laughter.) The amendment was carried.

POOR SCHOOL RESULTS.

Mr. A. R. Pickles, of Burnley, read a paper on elementary schools. During the last 30 years the school, he said, had developed into busy centres of social and industrial welfare. They had refined the homes of the people, had improved the pursuit of leisure and had generally contributed to an uplift of the standard of living.

Definite knowledge was a necessary part of education. In an examination of children between 11 and 13 in an important area two-thirds of the children failed to reach the minimum satisfactory standard. This and similar reliable evidence led to the conclusion that there was something amiss in respect of the instruction given in the elementary schools.

Flyosan*MAULED BY LIONESS.*ENGINEER WHO WALKED INTO HER LAIR.

A British railway engineer named Fane, engaged on the construction of the new Uasin-Gishu line, was returning to the construction camp when he walked into the lair of a lioness with two cubs. Before he could load his rifle the lioness sprang at him. He threw up an arm to defend his face and the lioness seized and mangled it severely. Her victim then lost consciousness, recovering to find that the lioness and her cubs had vanished. The two natives accompanying him fled when the beast attacked.

ODDS AND ENDS.*MAINLY SCISSORS LOOT.*Invention Of Billiards:

The time-honoured game of billiards, always so popular as an indoor amusement, is said to have been invented by Henriques Devigne, an artist, who lived in Paris in the days of Charles IX. of France. Henriques, a writer on olden pastimes, declares that billiards is merely the game of "Paille-Maille" transferred from the ground to the table. Another authority says that the Chinese claimed possession of a game similar to billiards, but that it was probably invented by the Dutch or Germans, from whom the French and English learned it. The celebrated "Guedish," whose work on what was long a classic, expresses no opinion, but contents himself with the remark that the game was known prior to the middle of the sixteenth century. In the memoirs of Saint-Simon, we read that Louis XIV. amused himself much with this game, particularly on winter evenings, when he played with Le Marechal Villeroi.

Primitive Accountancy.

Quaint methods of levying and keeping accounts of taxation in the time of the Norman Kings were described by Dr. D. F. de Hoste Ranking, in a lecture on "The Ancient Exchequer," delivered in connection with the Institute of Bookkeepers at Winchester House, Old Broad-street. In those remote times accounting meant the cutting of notches in wooden tally sticks, the sums due being indicated by varying sizes of the cuts made in the wood. For instance, £1,000 was indicated by a cut at the top of the tally as thick as the palm of the hand; £100 by a cut the breadth of the thumb; a score of pounds by a cut of the width of the little finger, and a single pound by a cut of the size of a fat barley-corn. The tally system ended in a blaze, for on the discontinuance of the custom by an Act of Parliament, a huge accumulation of wooden tallies was stored away and eventually used in the stoves which heated St. Stephen's. On October 16, 1834, these stoves became overheated, and the Houses of Parliament were burned down.

Questioned as to whether a person could manipulate the marks on a tally in his own favour, Dr. Ranking said the authorities in olden times had a drastic way of dealing with falsifiers, who run the risk of having their right hand cut off, and boiling pitch poured into the wound.

Flyosan*AERIAL GOLF.*LE TOUQUET WEEK-END MEETING.

Fifty aeroplanes will arrive at Berck-sur-Mer, near Le Touquet, for the aviation meeting organised by the British, French, and Belgian Aero Clubs.

Among the visitors is expected to be the King of the Belgians, who, it is understood, recently took the examination for his pilot's licence with this meeting in view. M. Laurent Eynac the French Air Minister, Sir Samuel Hoare, the British Air Minister, and Sir Sefton Brancker, Director of British Civil Aviation, will attend, the British representatives flying from London. The Duke and Duchess of Sutherland are also expected by air.

A feature of the meeting will be the game of aerial golf, in which the competitors try to drop golf balls into a hole 16 inches in diameter.

WHEN BABY IS CROSS AND SLEEPLESS TRY BABY'S OWN TABLETS.

After That You Will Never Want To Be Troubled Them In The House.

When baby is cross and sleepless there is something wrong and the little one is taking the only means he has of telling it. Under such circumstances the temptation to administer a sleeping draught, or opiate of some kind, is often great, but don't do it unless expressly ordered by a competent doctor who has seen the child. Instead give him Baby's Own Tablets, which are guaranteed to contain no opiates; they send the child to sleep simply because they remove the causes of his sleeplessness and make him feel good and comfortable.

Baby's Own Tablets are a remedy for simple fever, indigestion, constipation, colic, cramp, diarrhoea. They make teething easy and destroy worms. Of chemists, or post free, 60 cents per packet from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiango Road, Shanghai.

Flyosan*Too Stony.

It has now been discovered that the supposed skull of the Tertiary Period, estimated to be a million years old, which was found by a Canadian geologist in Patagonia several months ago and created a great stir in scientific circles, is merely a curiously shaped stone and without scientific value.

The Imaginative English.

The Hawththornden Prize of £100 for the greatest piece of imaginative literature published during the year was awarded to Mr. David Garnett for his "Lady Into Fox," at the Eolian Hall, Bond-street. The book is the first publication of the author. Mr. G. K. Chesterton, who presented the prize, said that instead of saying that the English had no imagination it was truer to say that they had nothing else. If there was one nation in the world that could be described as living on their imagination then it was the English people in their literature. They themselves were responsible for the impression that they were a plain, sensible, sturdy people, the truth being that they were so imaginative that they could imagine themselves anything, even prosaic. He hoped that English literature would guard against the charlatans whose works were trumpeted as original in the Press. This sham originality was nearly unvarying.

Poetic Fashions.

Modern poets try to approximate their verse to natural speech, said Mr. Laurence Binyon, in a lecture on "Traditions and Reactions in Modern Poetry," to members of the English Associations, at the Central Hall, Westminster. "This is returning to the poetry of the Anglo-Saxon period, which we can only excuse as primitive," he added. "Our poets have yet to learn that uncharted freedom is not so delightful as it sounds." In our own day, went on Mr. Binyon, the poet Laureate was our greatest innovator in the realm of rhythm, and poetry owed him much for his explorations in this direction. It was the example in free verse that Mr. Bridges set that influenced his contemporaries so widely, but with all his experiments he had never discarded metre. Our verse was so free already that if it were any freer it would cease to be verse, declared the speaker. Shelley did a great deal to liberate rhythm. He anticipated that rhythm would come to be used less and less in the future. At the same time the present movement for looseness in poetic forms, and the craze for originality, had nearly spent itself, and the future would see a reaction towards form. Poetic fashions had been exploited for too long by poets who hoped that the new movement would bring them talent.

Lloyd George As Chancellor.

"All things considered, Mr. Chamberlain seems the most probable Tory choice," says the Outlook. "Even his opponents respect him for that loyalty to his Chief which sent him into the political wilderness when he could probably have had the Premiership for the asking. I am told, however, that Mr. Chamberlain makes no secret to his friends that his belief in the necessity of a Coalition has been in no wise shaken since last October. Rather has it been confirmed by the failure of the present Government. Accordingly, were he approached, Mr. Chamberlain would probably declare that his first act upon taking office would be to invite Mr. Lloyd George to join him as Chancellor of the Exchequer. There is no doubt that the mercurial David would leap at the chance, and lead his sixty National Liberals into the Government camp."

Holiday With Thomas Hardy.

If you have time enough on your holiday, and are not particularly tied down to a rigid sum for spending, may I recommend an excellent new sort of touring? This is, to set down all the leading places mentioned by Thomas Hardy in his Wessex novels, and visit them, trying at each to identify the spots and incidents mentioned in the famous stories. Thus with "Dorchester" as "Casterbridge," "Bere Regis" as "Kingsbere," "Weymouth" as "Bournemouth," and so on, you will have a wondrous array of places to visit, it fresh interest as you approach each spot, a deeper knowledge of the districts, and natives who have been familiar to you in the novelist's pages; and you will obtain experiences, anecdotes, a knowledge of cathedrals, hostels, villages, and people between Oxford and Plymouth in such a way as will afford delightful reminiscences for the rest of your life!

I have done this myself, and have seldom found any holiday more restful, more satisfying, more productive of great and increasing interest. It becomes absolutely fascinating to trace step by step how "Angel Clare" and "Liza Lu" walked slowly up the High Street of Winchester during that last tragic scene recorded in "Tess"; or to traverse foot by foot the country-road into Fordington, where lived "Fanny Day"; and the famous church-burial; or to cross those green and luxuriant vales where Bathsheba Everdene led her strange and eventful life as a farmer. One feels something closely allied to the detective instinct stirring the heart and mind whilst one is enjoying the magnificent views, the lovely scenes, the vitalising air, the simple village-life, the seaside towns, the old-world markets, the native tales pervading the novels and the actual counties of Dorset, Devon, Somerset, and Hampshire alike.—George A. Wade in the Sunday at Home.

"OLE DAVIL, SEA!"

1923 now becomes historical with 1906. The intervening years have brought us "Big Winds" but with no disasters in their train such as those which have accompanied the visitations of the years mentioned. Many of us have secretly longed for a Tpyhoon with the same curiosity that a child in gazing at a clock longs to see how the wheels go round. We have saved our unnatural natural longings with the qualification of hope that no one would suffer—forgetting that sufferings are not merely those of bereaved ones; or those who suffer by loss of material and earthly possessions; but of those who for an unappreciable moment of actual time perhaps, yet lengthened beyond all computation in its quality of intenseness in the responsibility suddenly thrown upon them, in warning, in safeguarding and in attempting the almost impossible at a time when rugged nature with its teeth laid bare, is implacable. We shall need to exercise that Charity that suffereth all things in speaking of Saturday's disaster and of those things that the many wise amongst us will tell us ought to have been done. It is perhaps natural that all eyes and thoughts were upon the sea. There was a modicum, more than a modicum, of safety, on land but in our hearts we knew that on the sea it was different. The race there would be, more often than not, to the strong, and the strong ones were the wind and the sea. It was impossible to one knowing the passage, not to turn to that description of the sea which Oliver Wendell Holmes has in his "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table." It was read many years ago, but its simplicity of statement and its seeming absoluteness of truth, have made the impression which the passage of time has not effaced. Holmes is comparing a residence by the seashore or by the mountains. He does not say which is best. "The one where your place is in the best for you," is his, to one in doubt, unsatisfactory way of putting it. "The Sea," he adds, "remembers nothing: It is feline."

"It licks your feet,—its huge flanks purr very pleasantly for you; but it will crack your bones and eat you, for all that, and wipe the crimsoned foam from its jaws as if nothing had happened; . . . the sea mocks their (the children's) thirst and lets them die; . . . the sea has a fascinating, treacherous intelligence; . . . the sea smooths its silver scales until you cannot see their joints—but their shining is that of a snake's 'belly'—after all. . . . The sea drowns out humanity and time; it has no sympathy with either; for it belongs to eternity, and of that it sings its monotonous song for ever and ever."

No apology is offered for such a lengthy quotation. The mind went back to the passage as the wind continued to rage and the sea surged and raced at incredible speed; as the eye looked at the sunken boat with those who on board at one moment within sight and touch of safety, at another were swept to another bourne. It was easy to understand the sense of inevitableness in the words of the old Danish sailor in Eugene O'Neill's "Anna Christie," when he acknowledged the remorselessness of "dat ole davel, sea."

Parody.

Parody covers all forms of imitation, from the lowest, a mere verbal echo, to the highest, where it becomes a department of pure criticism. In its lowest form, where it aims at nothing better than verbal adaptation, parody does not demand a very high gift of literary sense, although even here a very fine verbal ingenuity may be shown. Calverley in his "Wanderers" made a remarkably ingenious imitation of the lyric in Tennyson's "Brook":

I come from haunts of cool and fern
I make a sudden Sally
And sparkle out among the fern
To bicker down a valley.

So closely did he reproduce this verse that he used the identical sounds in a changed sense, his Pedlar song singing:—

I deal in every ware in turn
I've rings for buddin' Sally
That sparkle like those eyes of her'n
I've liquor for the valet.

The most common motive for parody is to be found in the instinctive tendency to use someone else's work as a kind of jumping off ground from which the humorist can continue to impose himself upon public attention. In its highest development parody aims to reproduce the abiding qualities of a writer's style of speech and thought, and at its gentlest it need be nothing worse than a pure literary appreciation tempered by genial chaff. Indeed it is often the way that humor has of paying homage to serious achievement, of confessing its recognition of something beyond its own range, which it can honour but not emulate. The true test of a good caricature is that it should satisfy those who are well acquainted with the original. The highest test of a parody is that its merit should be acknowledged by the person whom it victimizes while a good parody should not be without its salutary effects.

Today's Poem.

(The Golden Hills of Hell.)
O, fair the Golden Hills of Hell,
Where lightly rest the purple lilies;
There, as all the saints tell Lightly nod, the lilies.

Dim beyond the scarlet river,
Slenderly and slow they nod,
Glimpsed from where the splendours quiver
On the minarets of God.

False tales the saints tell
Of the slender lilies;
For I have knelt on the Hills of Hell
Among the withered lilies.

TYPHOON.

RUMOUR AND REASON

The Dream Spectacles.

NINE VISITS THIS YEAR.

A good many people in the Colony have heard of the rumour in which the Chinese are said to place implicit faith in the assertion that this year Hongkong will be visited by nine typhoons. It is difficult to ascertain how this rumour originated but quite a number of Europeans were speaking about it last week, being under the impression that it was a fact that the Chinese believed in.

Efforts were made to trace the start of the rumour and it looks as if a European has invented it for the Chinese to believe. When published in the Press, the Chinese readily swallowed what was given.

However, in the course of enquiries, a rather fantastic story was heard which may prove enlightening. It is that the rumour started in Macao. At noon some days ago, so the story goes, an old man walked quietly into a pawnshop opposite a large temple. He laid down his spectacles and demanded a loan of $100. The pawnbroker upbraided him for being silly whereupon he was told to look through the glasses when he would recognise their value. Out of curiosity, the pawnbroker did so and was stunned to see before him a clear vision of a large area completely devastated by typhoon and inundated with water. He at once took off the magical glasses only to find that the old man had vanished. On looking for the glasses again, he found that they had also disappeared. That night, the pawnbroker is said to have had a dream, the main purport of which was that South China would be visited by nine typhoons this season. Unfortunately, the story does not say which shop in Macao contains the budding prophet nor what steps he took to protect himself when Macao was struck by the typhoon on Saturday.

Fate Sealed?

NO MORE "LOONGSANG" SURVIVORS.

It is now three days since the "Loongsang" plunged to her doom and the hope of any further survivors turning up is discouragingly small. The body of a European is reported to have been seen floating down the harbour yesterday but it could not be found when a boat was sent out.

A depressing incident has been the finding of two of the "Loongsang's" lifeboats at Ching Lun Tau, opposite Capatsum. They were lashed together with large tins between them and this goes to explain how it was people ashore swore to seeing a raft leave the ill-fated vessel whereas the "Loongsang's" captain knew nothing of it.

"Loongsang" Victim's Funeral.

The funeral of the late Mr. Malcolm Black, the "Loongsang's" third engineer took place at Happy Valley yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended. Covering the coffin as it was borne from the hearse to the graveside was the flag of the British Mercantile Marine. The burial service was conducted by the Rev. J. T. Holman.

The chief mourners were the Chief Officer of the "Loongsang" (Mr. J. S. Masson) and Mr. J. Muirhead a friend of the deceased. Following immediately behind these two gentlemen were Capt. F. T. Wheeler (Marine Superintendent of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co., Ltd.), and Mr. D. McMurray (Superintendent Engineer of the same firm). All the Indo-China S.N. Co. ships in port were represented at the funeral whilst the staff of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co. were present in large numbers. Amongst others present were Mr. D. G. M. Bernard (local head of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co., Ltd.), Mr. R. Sutherland (Shipping Manager), Mr. W. Galloway, Mr. N. L. Ralston, Mr. McFarlane, Mr. A. F. Osmond, Captains Kennedy, Campbell, Kelman and Chandler.

A great many wreaths were sent by the officers of the Company and from the staff of the firm as well as one from Mrs. Black, the deceased's widow.

Further Deaths And Damage.

Further reports have been received concerning the havoc wrought—unfortunately, attended by more deaths—by the typhoon in the districts adjacent to the Colony. The biggest of these disasters is the foundering during the storm of a fishing-boat (No. 491) to the east of Lamma Channel when fifteen men and seven women, all Chinese were drowned.

From Cheung Chau comes the report that ten people were drowned when fishing boat No. 845HC capsized off Sai Wan.

The damage at Tai O, excluding that caused in the outlying districts—these not having been reported yet—is assessed at $40,000 which is a large sum for the agricultural people. Nineteen matsheds and twelve houses collapsed there, it being stated that the typhoon struck the place with its full force. Fortunately no loss of life has been mentioned.

Another Gallant Rescue.

Mr. G. J. Walters, officer in charge of the Chinese Customs launch "Young Ching," was responsible for another gallant rescue in trying circumstances. He was taking his launch to shelter when he noticed a junk with distress signals about six miles from Ping Chow Island near Mirs Bay. At considerable risk he brought his vessel alongside the junk and took off the whole crew consisting of ten souls. Shortly after the junk had been abandoned, it sank.

Bodies Recovered.

Yesterday the authorities picked up five more dead bodies in the harbour and neighbouring waters.

In addition to these, the body of a Chinese male 25 years of age, named Woo Tung, living at No. 23, Caine Road, was found in the water under the Keng Shan Wharf which is outside Sincere's.

Two dead bodies were recovered also in Shaikwan Bay.

Other Casualties.

At Pingshan in the New Territories, the roof of the Land Office and a number of matsheds were damaged by the gale.

Whilst on a voyage from Tam Kung Tau to Aberdeen a fishing junk was caught in the storm and was driven out of its course towards Shek Pik where it finally capsized. It is stated that seven men, and seven women and children, are missing.

Trading junk No. 1450H, foundered in the typhoon at Sam Pak Tau when the cargo of 50,000 bricks was lost but the crew were all saved.

It is stated that part of the cargo of poultry and pigs on the Wuchow steamer "Wo Kwai" which arrived in Hongkong after the typhoon had to be thrown overboard during the storm.

"Safety First."

Shortly after six yesterday evening, most of the junk and boat people in the harbour thought it advisable to go to shelter when the signals were put up. Hundreds of large and small cargo junks and lighters were in various parts of the western anchorage but most of them had made off by the time darkness set in. A few, which had just been loaded to the water's edge from ships, had to be discharged with extra gangs of coolies as the crews were clamouring to get away. A wonderful scene was presented when a launch would take in tow as many as thirty large junks which in the distance resembled a flock of ducks going down a river in the Canton delta.

This morning, except for a few intrepid spirits and a small number of launches, there were few small craft in either of the Fairways, the junk anchorage or alongside the western praya working cargo.

The Aftermath.

ROADS SUFFER BADLY.

Steady progress is being made with the work of clearing up the debris left in the typhoon's wake and repairing the damage caused. Naturally the roads have suffered a good deal and it will be some months before they are restored to "pre-typhoon" season condition. There have been several landslides on the Hongkong side but P. W. D. officials hope to open up the road the whole way round the Island towards the end of the week.

Over on the other side the Tai Po Road is impassable and the damage done by the tidal wave at Shatin blocks the way to Fanling. It is hoped to open the section between Lal-chi-kok and Castle Peak in a few days in order that motorists may be able to go that way but they will have to drive very carefully for some time.

Nobody has had a busier time of it during the past day or two than the staff of the Sanitary Board to whom has fallen the job of clearing away the litter in the streets and attending to house collapses. Theirs has been the sad task too of recovering the bodies of typhoon victims of which so far 38 have been removed to the mortuary.

It will take many years to repair the ravage amongst the trees and shrubs which is unprecedented since the 1906 disaster.

The reclamation works in the Harbour have come off fairly well. No damage at all was done at Tai Kok Tsui and the Praya East reclamation has not suffered much. A good deal of earth was washed into the sea but was kept within the reclamation area by the rubble wall built for the purpose.

The "Ginyo Maru"

DAMAGED IN TYPHOON.

The Toyen Kishen Kaisha s.s. "Ginyo Maru," which was driven alongside the Naval Yard, close to the V.R.C. in Saturday's typhoon, is more seriously damaged than at first thought. The company's marine superintendent informed a China Mail representative this morning that the vessel is to go to Kowloon Dock as soon as a berth is available. Fourteen of the vessel's shell plates, eight feet above the water line, are badly bent. When the vessel hit the corner of the quay, the impact also bent 30 frames. It is feared that the vessel has been damaged below the water line, while the under propellers and tail-shaft also need attention. Until the vessel is examined in dry dock it will be impossible to ascertain the full extent of the damage, but it is expected that at least three weeks will be required to put the vessel to rights.

The "Shinyo Maru," in the same ownership, has gone into dry dock for her usual overhauling and not on account of any specific damage on the voyage from Shanghai, as stated in some quarters this morning.

Stormy Outlook.

STRONG GALES FROM EAST POSSIBLE.

At 12.58 p.m. yesterday, the Royal Observatory issued a warning that a typhoon of unknown intensity, with direction and position uncertain was in Lat. 14deg. N., Long. 119 E. At 5.22 p.m. yesterday the No. 1 signal was hoisted. At 2.55 p.m. today, the following notice was posted up: Typhoon of unknown intensity within 120 miles of Lat. 20deg. N., Long. 115 E., moving in a westerly direction. At 6 a.m. this morning, the typhoon was about 200 miles S.E. of Hongkong, moving West. Another typhoon is shown to the S.E. of the Looechees. Its direction of motion is not known at present. The forecast for the next 24 hours is easterly winds, possibly increasing to a gale, accompanied by rain.

A telegram from the Manila Observatory, received at the American Consulate-General at 1 o'clock today, gives warning of a typhoon in about 117deg. Long. E., 14deg. Lat. N., moving W.

Good News.

"MING-SANG" SAFE.

It has been rumored that the s.s. "Ming-sang," one of Jardine's steamers was in trouble. The "Ming-sang," however, was passed on Sunday by the "Wingsang" of the same line when it was ascertained that all was well.

Steamer Ashore.

CONFUSION OVER NAME.

The "Chekiang," reported to have gone ashore on the north side of Stoncutter's Island during the typhoon was not the China Navigation Company's vessel but another one belonging to a Chinese concern. The China Navigation Company's "Chekiang," Messrs. Butterfield & Swire state, was not at Hongkong during the typhoon.

LIFE SAVING.

WORKABLE PLAN NEEDED.

HARBOUR MASTER INTERVIEWED.

A China Mail representative this morning sought the views of the Harbour Master (Commander C.M. Beckwith, R.N.) as to the feasibility of the formation of a Life Saving Corps and the installation of modern life-saving apparatus.

Commander Beckwith was in favour of any institution that would tend towards reducing the risk of lives being lost during a typhoon. He acknowledged that in the event of ships foundering close to shore, as in the case of the "Loong Sang," a rocket and mortar apparatus, throwing a life-line, might be of use. These mortars will throw a line, under favourable conditions, approximately 300 yards. It must be remembered, however, he stated, "that Saturday's storm was quite abnormal. With a wind travelling 130 miles an hour, it is doubtful whether a mortar would have been any use. When a typhoon strikes Hongkong harbour it is a storm in a tea-cup with a vengeance."

THE OLD DAYS. Commander Beckwith recalled how some years ago there was a Volunteer Life-Saving Corps in Hongkong. The instructions were that when the black signal (indicating a typhoon within 300 miles) was hoisted all hands repaired to their various stations. The consequence was that on occasion the men were kept there for three days at a time and, eventually, the typhoon passed Hongkong by. Naturally the volunteers lost their enthusiasm. Later, naval launches were called upon to do the work, but, as evidenced on Saturday, even the naval launch that tried to get alongside the "Loong Sang" was unable to do so, being carried out to sea. With regard to life-boats, Commander Beckwith expressed a doubt whether on Saturday a life-boat would have been of any service during the height of the storm. Though it might have kept afloat, it is highly probable that the crew would have been washed overboard. It must be remembered that the case of the "Loong Sang" is exceptional in every way; there is no previous case on record where a ship has been driven from anchorage, holed and sank so close to shore. Most of the vessels that have sunk during typhoons previously, appear to have gone to the bottom in the various bays some distance from shore. I am naturally strongly in favour of the introduction of a scheme that will aid us to save life during typhoons, but am by no means satisfied that any workable plan has yet been suggested."

TYPHOON AMENITIES

To Commander U. S. South China Patrol.

The Overland China Mail, weekly issue of the China Mail, will contain the full story of the typhoon. Orders should be booked now as a heavy demand is certain.

ONE A MONTH.

LUKONG'S LAPSE.

Mr. D. Burlingham prosecuted Chinese constable No. 686, named Chung Kwai, before Mr. C. D. Melbourne this morning, with being asleep on duty on the 19th.

The defaulting constable was caught asleep sitting on a stool in the Central compound when he should have been on Police duty at 4.45 a.m. It was stated in court that he had only been ten months in the service and had been punished on ten occasions for petty offences by the C.S.P.

Sentence of seven days' hard labour was passed.

The death occurred at St. Luke's Hospital, Tokyo, early on the 5th instant of Mrs. Mary Annie Howe, wife of Dr. M. A. Howe, of Yokohama. Mrs. Howe has been invalid for some time. On Christmas night she collapsed, and had since been a patient—first at the Yokohama General Hospital and later at St. Luke's, Tokyo. Towards the end Mrs. Howe suffered very little, and was conscious up to the last. Mrs. Howe was born at Engleton Hall, Engleton, Yorkshire, England, on March 22, 1868, and was thus in her 55th year. She came to Japan in December, 1891, on a six months' holiday, and while here met Dr. Howe, became engaged and was married. She has only once been out of Japan, namely in 1920. Mrs. Howe is survived by her husband and son (Mr. L. M. Howe), to whom in their bereavement the sympathy of many friends will be extended.

LABOUR PARTY LOSSES.MEMBERSHIP REDUCED BY 700,000 IN 1922.

The Labour Party's annual report, shows that the total income during the year was £51,721, against expenditure of £70,782, reducing the balance of £23,033 with which the year began to £3,972. The difference is explained by a falling off in receipts from affiliation fees owing to the effect of unemployment on trade union membership and an increase in expenditure, largely attributed to the cost of the general election.

The affiliated membership of the party now stands at 3,310,236, compared with 4,010,361 a year ago. The executive has decided that the Communist Party's renewed application for affiliation cannot be entertained, and will recommend at next week's conference the party at Queen's Hall, W., that it be not accepted.

The safest ship in the world:
Friendship.

In love, sweet are the lines of diversity.
Some people have a cold bath
every morning, winter and summer.
The bare idea!

"I have considerable sympathy

Sir John Bitcher. So have we.

The only cure for malaria is whiskey or quinine. Our most regular reader wants to know when he can get malaria.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle says that he has ceased writing fiction. Is this another fairy story?

Our fashion expert reports that

We hear of a woman who can only speak English marrying a man who speaks fifteen languages. About the right kind of a match.

Mr. Bailey only found two policemen on his early morning stroll in Kowloon. They had both left.

Nothing is inherent in our nature, says a wiseman. You bet it is.

G. K. Chesterton thinks that drink, in more senses than one, is a matter of taste. Out here it is a matter of chills.

Pointed remarks invariably cause
blunt answers.

There are occasions when the mind is absent from the body, says Sir Edward Marshall Hall. This is the best description of intoxication we have so far come across.

Definitions:
Lover: The delusion that one woman differs from another.
Wife: One who is sorry she did it, but would, undoubtedly do it again.

big one.

Golfing: A man who does a lot of digging without getting paid for it.

gets over the idea that he is a thing of beauty and a boy for ever.

To refuse to be vaccinated, says
the Bishop of Gloucester, is wrong from a religious point of view. We must say this sort of thing leaves us

A man's business is more likely to go wrong if he does not mix a little mischief with it. So remarks Dr. H.

WATER POLO.

RESULTS OF MATCHES
LAST NIGHT.

[BY ARGUS]

At the V. R. C. swimming pool

Rogers obtaining the point for the
R. G. A. After the interval, Paul

A PORTUGUESE VICTORY.
King's (B), in the second match, put up quite a good fight with the Lusitano team, though they played the game in snatches. In the first half, Sousa scored twice and Carvalho once for the L.R.C., who led by 3-0 at the interval. Early in the second half, Carvalho added a fourth goal. The King's then got more together and Potter and Carlin each scored, the former's goal entering the net off Carvalho.
When the final whistle sounded the L.R.C. were winners by 4-2.

Teams:
King's (B): Harris (goal); Carlin, Gardner (backs); Potter (half-

THE CORONET.

"NANOOK OF THE NORTH."

Without the walrus and the seal, their best sources of heat, giving food and clothing, existence would cease to be possible with the peoples depicted in the Coronet's wonderful Arctic picture, "Nanook of the North." The Eskimos' skill in capturing these ocean animals, weighing at full growth from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds, with their slender, walrus-ivory pointed harpoons, is remarkable. The picture shows every detail of these exciting adventures—with the women and children helping them, their appetites whetted for their favourite food, raw seal meat. In the Arctic mid-winter the whole Eskimo family is seen dog-sled-ging over vast fields of ice
under which may be seals.
The mighty hunter, Nanook, has keen and well-trained eyes. Suddenly he halts the dog team and falls on his fore-curved knees. He brushes a bit of snow from the ice. He has found a blowhole, where the seals come up to breathe. He makes ready his harpoon and waits. Suddenly he stands and plunges his harpoon down into the hole. The party on the sledges see Nanook struggling at his end of line and hurry to his aid. The ice-hole is widened and presently Nanook and his women and the famished dogs are enjoying perhaps their first square meal for a week. This is but one of the exciting incidents in the remarkable film, "Nanook of the North."
It is a human interest drama, and its clear and beautiful photography and its intimate revelations of the strangest social and domestic conditions in the world make it a production of exceptionally wide appeal.

Chinese newspapers in Peking report that an enormous sensation has been caused in Outer Mongolia by the sudden death of the wife of the Living Buddha. On two occasions in the past she had tried to investigate her husband to declare his independence and to establish a monarchy in Mongolia so that her descendants might sit on the throne. At one time she made use of the Russian Red Army in the hope of bringing this about, but not meeting with the hoped-for success she had latterly opposed the Bolsheviks. The latter are believed to have held a meeting a few days ago to consider her attitude and decided that as a disturber of the peace she must be removed. Owing to the influence of the Buddha and his wife this could not be done openly, and it is said that they bribed her attendants to poison her.
This view is apparently borne out by the fact that death occurred immediately she had eaten a meal.

REVIEW.

The Adelphi, Vol. I, No. 1,
June, 1923.

Nowadays so many publications,
costly, delectable but barren of contents, are thrust upon the literary world, that a magazine bearing the name of Middleton Murry is inclined to raise our hopes, perhaps unduly. From him, at any rate, we shall get none of those shapeless sitewords which exasperate the desperate purchaser of first editions.
In the light of this not unjustified hope, we confess to a mild disappointment with the "Adelphi."
Mr. Murry in his editorial—"The Cause of It All"—emphasises the purpose of his monthly; he calls for contributions from any writer whose sincere belief in anything prompts him to write. "That life is the most important thing in the world, and that faith in life urges the most valuable forms of expression, is the creed of the Adelphi. Let us delve into the 'Sanctum Sanctorum' of a man's life, in the modern manner.
We find it, cry 'Realism,' and regret that its life authors did not devote their life in detailed atmosphere to a more tasty subject.
Katherine Mansfield is too fine to suffer by this example of genius in a backwater, but we deplore her lapse.

Mr. D. H. Lawrence is urgent on child-education. He uses his back ground of trees cunningly; but spoils his effect with slices from the "Lancet" . . . "the great human ganglion . . . value to our sensual passionists pride and independence."
But "stop meaning that out. It's get its own life to live, so let it live it." . . . is superb. What a waste!
"The Estuary" by H. M. Tomlin-son, is a pure gem, almost redeming what has gone before. For choice of epithet and discreetly hidden brush-strokes this author is hard to equal. The reader's eye even wanders; he, too, drinks his fill of tropical Devon and the coming life in the tide below Mr. Tom-linson's tethered boat. "The water
. . . was tinted so faint a berry that I knew when my fingers touched it only because it was cold, and the air was hot! A magnificent excursion, for a slithering!"
Tchekov's letter to Sonvorin, dealing with the plan for what was later to be the "Uncle Vanya," is very human. But whether life's sincerity is its justification or the name of Tchekov, is quite debatable.

"On Being Gossiped," by J. W. N.
Sullivan left its with an impression of George Moore, writing with a dictionary at his elbow, with little excuse.

"The Contributors' Club" is not as Mr. Murry claims, "now in English journalism." It was done before, more competently and in better style, in the first number of the Hongkong "Svenska." But following it comes "Mr. Joiner and the Bible," a charming piece of self-revelation by the "Journeyman," where is found the only real literature to companion Mr. Tomlinson. The undisciplined simplicity of the story and the masterly reflection of familiar thoughts in a familiar and kindly mind leave with the reader a conviction of truth which seems the only example of the raison d'être that the Editor claims for his magazine. Here at least is sincerity. This picture, with its power of calling facts in the last lines, hangs in the gallery where O. Henry's "Last Leaf" and the black flag over the goal in "Toss of the D'Urbervilles" bear witness that Beauty, once created, is imperishable.

And that gallery is small.

THE PHIL.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Hongkong Philharmonic Society was held at the Cathedral Hall yesterday evening, the Chairman, Mr. C. E. H. Beavis, presiding, supported by Mr. E. J. Bullock (Hon.
Secretary), Mr. E. J. Ralphs (Hon.
Treasurer), Mr. C. Temple Bevan (Conductor), Messrs. W. L.
Handysides, H. Percy, Mr. and Mrs. S. Collett, S. Paul, H. Penny and others.

The Chairman expressed the hope that the Society would continue successfully during the coming year, and that their next concert would be a success. The last was not successful from a financial point of view, but this was to be accounted for by counter attractions and the fact that the Peak trains on that particular evening ceased to run at 6 p.m.

Mr. Ralphs presented the accounts, stating that they had a balance in the Bank at the present time of $120. They had started the year with a fund of $347, but they had lost on the concert in the extent of $307, and this had eaten up a large proportion of the old balance.

The accounts were adopted.
Officers were elected as follows:
Chairman, Mr. C. E. H. Beavis.
Hon. Secretary, Mr. S. Collett.
(Mr. Bullock stated that he was unable to carry on through pressure of work).

Hon. Treasurer, Mr. E. Ralphs.
Committee: Messrs. Temple
Bevan (Conductor), Fieldgate, (Librarian) and C. Gerken. The appointment of a pianist in the place of Mr. Eric Rice, who is absent from the Colony, was left in the hands of the committee.

It was decided to commence holding practices for the next concert on the third Monday, in September, and continue them every Monday night. The date of the concert was left to the committee, but will probably be towards the end of the year.
It was further decided to raise the subscription from one dollar per annum to two dollars.

ARMS PROBLEM.

FIVE YEARS' JAIL.

The August Criminal sessions opened yesterday morning and amongst the cases heard was one in which a Chinese was convicted of having been unlawfully in possession of arms, aboard the s.s.
"Kwong Tai."

The Chief Justice (Sir William Rees Davies K.C.) awarded a sentence of five years with hard labour.

Gen. Gouraud &amp; Gen. Bullard. 1918.

General Henri Joseph Eugene Gouraud, who lost his arm in the Gallipoli campaign and who commanded the Forty-second American (Rainbow) Division when that organization upset his whole plan of battle on July 15, 1918, by refusing to retreat before the assault of the Germans, is shown here greeted, in New York, by Major-General R. L. Bullard, commander of the First Corps Division at its Indianapolis convention. General H. J. Reilly, of the Rainbow Division, is shown in the photo.

Mrs. Borena Pondelick

Miss Esther Radell. 1935.

James Wallace Pondelick, rich commercial photographer, internationally known as a rotogravure artist, brought suit against his wife, Mrs. Borena Pondelick, asking divorce on the ground of alleged cruelty. Mrs. Pondelick's answer was to have her husband and beautiful Miss Esther Radell, a business associate, arrested on the charge they were found together in Miss Radell's apartment.

E. E. Smith, 1918.

"Big Ed" E. Smith, Republican "backstage" whip, who is credited with making more Governors, Legislators, Judges and Mayors in his native State than the entire force of the Republican party, has been named Chairman of the Republican National Committee by President Harding. Although recognized as a lawyer of merit, Mr. Smith has not appeared in court for 20 years. Exerting great political power, he is taking hold of the Republican party reins in preparation for the 1924 Presidential election.

M. Ernest Judet. 1918.

Ernest Judet, former director of the Paris newspaper l'Eclair, is central in the French capital on the charge of treason. Judet, now 72, was arrested six years after the commission of his alleged crime. He is accused of having dealt with the Germans during the World War, and now threatens to reveal the dealings of many prominent Frenchmen if he is pressed. Judet fled to Switzerland during the war and is said to have established communication with the German diplomatic service.

Maj.-Gen. Masqu M. Patrick. 1918.

Major-General Masqu M. Patrick, Chief of the Army Air Service, has just been awarded his double wings as a qualified aeroplane pilot; despite the fact that he is 60 years of age. The majority of aeroplane officers are in their early twenties, and it was a belief in the service that older men were not qualified to make good pilots.

Mrs. M.M. Dunlap. 1918.

Mrs. Mary Minear Dunlap, of Chillicothe, has the honour of being the oldest woman in the Buckeye State. She has just celebrated her 195th anniversary and expects to live many years longer. She can remember many incidents of her childhood days, when her playmates were children of Shawnee Indians then inhabiting the Middle West.

Gen. E.F. McGlachlin &amp; Gen. H.E. Ely. 1918.

Major-General Edward F. McGlachlin has retired as commander of the Army War College, in Washington, and has been succeeded by Major-General Hanson E. Ely.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen - How General Travels

The Chinese Government has taken official action to stop banditry, such as led to international complications when foreigners were kidnapped from a Shanghai-Peking express train. The litter in which Dr. Sun Yat-sen travels is shown, as is part of his motley command. Note that many of the soldiers carry umbrellas.

Here is a photograph of General Averescu leader of the Rumanian People's Party, as he reached Bucharest, following the great revolt of the peasants against the then existing Government. It was Averescu who brought about the changes in the Government.

RUSSIA'S INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION

Moscow, August 19.
The opening of the Industrial Exhibition of the Alliance of Soviet Republics, was in the nature of a solemn public ceremony. There were many congratulatory speeches and demonstrations of enthusiasm.

Two hundred and fifty foreign firms are participating in the exhibition, which is divided into one hundred and fifteen sections and occupies an open air site covering two hundred acres on the right bank of the Moskva adjoining Neskouchni Park, on the outskirts of the city.

M. Chicherine, who was loudly acclaimed, dwelt on the international importance of the exhibition. He was followed by M. Krassin, who emphasized the economic consequences which might be expected as a result of Russia's capacity for self-help.

All the foreign representatives were present, and the Chinese delegates presented a banner to the exhibition as a symbol of union among the Eastern Peoples.

The ceremony concluded with the singing of the International Hymn by the crowd, who were three-headed.

FIRES IN FRANCE.

PARIS, August 19.
Great forest fires have devastated the whole of the Var Coast, burning down several villages and causing the inhabitants to flee to Cannes.

Crops have been completely destroyed, and the Thermal Station, the Race Course at Mandelieu and the Cannes Golf Club have also been destroyed. One woman and two children have been burned to death.

Troops were called out to fight the flames. The fires were overcome eventually through the wind changing just as the flames reached the country on the outskirts of Mandelieu.

IRISH ELECTIONS.

LONDON, August 19.
The nominations for the Irish Free State Elections show approximately 350 candidates.

The Labourites are well represented, while there is a likelihood of some Ministers failing to gain re-election. On the other hand, including the chief Republican candidate for North Mayo, Patrick Duggan, who was acting president for the Valence.

Mr. Cosgrave has declared that the Government is endeavouring to arrest Rutledge.

There are several women candidates, chiefly Republican. Many priests are signing nomination papers for candidates of either of the principal parties.

CHINA'S TROUBLES.

LONDON, August 19.
A Daily News correspondent, Mr. Wilson Harris, in an examination of the situation in China, suggests that she should approach the League of Nations to bring about a solution of her trouble.

He points out that as a member of the League of Nations Council and Assembly, she would be like a man who is committing a crime, of which he himself is a shareholder and director, to build his house. He points to the League's services in connection with Austria, and says it must be clear to Dr. Wellington Koo that unless China can take the initiative in putting her own house in order, some form of foreign intervention is immediately threatened.

SHANGHAI, August 19.
The authorities in Kiangsu and Chekiang have concluded an agreement as follows:

I.—In compliance with the wishes of the people, the said authorities agree to avoid any political movement which may lead to military action.

II.—The authorities in the provinces agree to prevent outside armies from entering their provinces, and also to give each other their moral support.

III.—The Commissioner of Foreign Affairs at Shanghai will be instructed to notify the Consuls to this effect, and to request them to prevent political questions which may lead to military action or disturb the public.

TRAVELLING THEATRE

ARTS LEAGUE OF SERVICE COMPANY.

"Forgive us for our absolute simplicity"—that was the plea of the Arts League of Service Travelling Theatre company made before the curtain rose on their entertainment at the Court Theatre.

But there was no need for any apology. The charm of the performance was its simplicity. A clever little band of actors who have toured England and Scotland for four years, with themselves and their scenery and their "props" carried in a single motor-car, had come to London at last.

Here was something new and jolly—and clever. The two short plays—"Campbell of Kilmahoy," by J. A. Ferguson, and "Everybody's Husband," by Gilbert Cannan—might not be exactly gems of dramatic art, but the acting had a naturalness, a spontaneity rare in more elaborate productions.

Better still, however, were the folk song and dances which occupied the biggest part in the programme. Miss Sara Allgood, with her captivating Irish accent recalling so pleasantly the Irish Players, was a sheer delight whether singing or acting. But all the company played in a way that suggested that they had their hearts and their souls in their work.
